

Aruba

We already loved Aruba for its endless miles of crystal waters lapping at white sand beaches, not to mention its fascinating shipwrecks that make for great diving. But, in 2019, the southern Caribbean nation announced major new sustainability initiatives, co-led by both the government and local businesses. For example, while the government is establishing programs to reduce and upcycle plastics, hotel properties like Bucuti & Tara Beach Resort made radical changes to become the Caribbean's first carbon-neutral resort.
